NEW DELHI: Indira Gandhi National Open University (IGNOU) has now made its e-resources, e-journals and e-books accessible from home, office or from anywhere, 24x7 days for academics, faculty, regional centres, research and teaching assistants, researchers and on-campus students by getting the Remote Access To E-Resources activated by Union Minister for Road Transport & Highways Prof. (Dr.) C.P. Joshi over the weekend.

“Connecting millions”

IGNOU Vice-Chancellor Prof. V.N. Rajasekharan Pillai said: “With the remarkable achievements of the other Internet connectivity sources of the university, it is considered to be the technological university in the country connecting millions of people. With thousands of tele-centres soon coming up with the help of the university, it is going to be the national e-governance provider.”

The Minister also inaugurated a new administration building and delivered the 16th Prof. G. Ram Reddy Memorial Lecture on ‘Rural Empowerment and Panchayati Raj Institutions’ at the IGNOU campus in Maidan Garhi.
